

LAS VEGAS PEOPLE GAIN NOTORIETY

Miss De Long Was on Ill-Fated Steamer Merida That Sank in Atlantic; Clarence Batchelor Famous Artist.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.) Las Vegas, N. M., May 18.—Miss Teresa Long, daughter of Judge and Mrs. E. V. Long of this city, was one of the 267 passengers on the ill-fated steamer Merida which was rammed in a collision off Cape Charles, Virginia, last Friday with the steamer Admiral Farragut, resulting in the sinking soon afterward of the Merida.

Miss Long was on her way to New York City from Vera Cruz, Mexico. She had been in Mexico City for about a year, and started for home several weeks ago. On account of the revolution her brother, Boaz Long, found it necessary to send her this round-about way because the railroads are out of commission in the strife-torn republic.

A message received by Judge and Mrs. Long from their daughter announced that she had reached New York safely and would soon continue her journey to this city.

Fame is being attained by Clarence Batchelor, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Batchelor of Las Vegas, through the instrumentality of his clever drawings, which have been appearing lately in Life, Puck and Judge. Mr. Batchelor's talent is well known. He is now located in Kansas City, Mo. Las Vegas people will be glad to learn of his success.

The entertainment committee of the Elks lodge has issued invitations to the members and their families and their visiting brethren for Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. On that date a dancing and keno party will be given. This is the first of a series of social events to be participated in by the Elks. It has been a long time since the Elks have entertained for their ladies, but they are planning many parties for their entertainment in the future, especially after completion of the new Elks home.

For the purpose of formulating plans for the observance of Decoration day the Las Vegas post of the Grand Army of the Republic held a called meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of the Mutual Building and Loan association.

PATRIOTIC MOTIVE ANIMATES REBELS

General Price, Leader of Revolt in Lower California Declares They Are Misjudged; Soldiers Vaccinated.

San Diego, Cal., May 18.—Declaring the popular sentiment of the purpose of the rebellion against the Mexican government in Baja, California to be vastly wrong, General Price, in command of the victorious rebel contingent holding Tia Juana, said:

"You do not have the right idea. We are fighting to dethrone Diaz because the act shall be necessary in accomplishing a more divine purpose. To show you just what reason we have for participating in the rebellion of Lower California, let me point out to you the cause in the declaration of the Mexican liberal party junta in Los Angeles."

He handed out a copy of the declaration of principles, with a paragraph marked by a thumb crease. The paragraph read:

"The Mexican liberal party is not fighting to destroy Porfirio Diaz in order to put in his place a new tyrant. The Mexican liberal party is taking part in the actual insurrection with the deliberate and firm purpose of expropriating the land and the means of production, and handing them over to the people, that is, to each and every one of the inhabitants of Mexico, without distinction of sex. This act we consider essential to open the gates for the effective emancipation of the Mexican people."

General Price today ordered 100 of his fighting rebels to submit to the vaccination scalpel.

They marched in line up to a table at which was seated Dr. J. A. Jackson of San Diego, and were vaccinated. The task consumed the day. The remainder of the army will be vaccinated as fast as possible.

"We do not want any smallpox in this city," said Price. Since a Mexican refugee brought into the American soldier camp developed a desperate case of smallpox, every precaution has been taken to stop the spreading of the disease.

"When are you going to make the next move?" was asked the rebel commander.

"I have nothing to say about that," he replied.

Over a thousand tourists went to Tia Juana today and paid the 25 cents admission to the rebel camp.

United States sailors, leaving their caps and coats on the American side of the line were allowed to cross in the remainder of their uniform by the United States army patrol.

Refugees and storekeepers who ran at the first sign of trouble, are now returning to Tia Juana and occupying their old residences.

MUSIC COMES HIGH IN SANTA FE

License Introduced By Alderman Alarid Would Charge $400 Year for Music in Saloons; Sunday Law Strict.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.) Santa Fe, N. M., May 18.—Alderman Canuto Alarid Tuesday evening, at the meeting of the city council at the court house introduced a saloon regulation license modeled on lines of ordinances in municipalities where the traffic is strictly regulated and the ordinance was passed on the first reading, indicating that the city authorities are willing that the business should be thoroughly controlled, a sentiment for which they deserve much credit. The ordinance makes closing at midnight mandatory, except on Saturday nights when the closing hour is to be 2 a. m. On Sundays during the hours that saloons will be closed under the ordinance, all curtains must be up and all obstructions to a view of the interior of the saloon, must be removed, thus putting an effective stop to the Sunday traffic.

A special license fee of $400 a year is placed on music in saloons and the sale of intoxicants to minors is to be stamped out effectively. It is a fuelled ordinance and its passage will serve much to satisfy those who demand a strict regulation of the saloon business.

The reading of the Mayor Seligman's annual report as well as the reports of standing committees was followed with close attention and it was ordered printed.

A sidewalk ordinance providing for the construction of more sidewalks was adopted. Bids for the bridges across the Arroyo Salto and the Arroyo Madre were rejected as being too high, and substitute plans for such bridges made by Kansas City and Trinidad, Colorado, bidders, were adopted and new bids asked for. These were located upon last evening.

City Clerk Delgado's monthly report showed that on April 30 there were $1,856.94 in the city treasury. During the past month twelve permits and four automobile licenses were issued. The automobile for hire license was reduced from $40 to $20. The complete list of those who bid on the construction of the bridge across the Arroyo Salto were:

El Paso Iron and Bridge company $6,250; R. W. Smith of Las Vegas, $5,874; Campbell Bros., Santa Fe, $5,291; A. Windsor, Santa Fe, $4,925.25; Midland Bridge company, Kansas City, submitted their own plan with a bid of $200.

For the Don Gaspar avenue bridge there was only one bidder, R. W. Smith of Las Vegas for $172.

It developed at the meeting that Mayor Seligman had foreseen the need of a board to handle money intended for charity, following the charity organization plans perfected in many cities of the east for in his annual report read last night, the mayor unhesitatingly recommended that there be established a board of charity and correction and that all money go through the hands of this board.

PREPARATIONS MADE BY FRUIT MEN

The Pecos Valley Association Plans to Handle the Biggest Crop in History in Up-to-Date Manner.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.) Roswell, N. M., May 18.—The oldest inhabitants are unable to recall a year when there was such promise of a large fruit crop and such splendid conditions on the range at this season as now. The recent rains have been quite general, covering the range in every direction, and the whole country is carpeted with the many varieties of wild flowers that grow in profusion in New Mexico after spring or summer rains.

The Pecos Valley Fruit Growers' association has had its secretary wire direct to manufacturers for prices on shipping boxes, nails and wrappers. It is proposed to buy all supplies direct, and save the members the middleman's profit. Experienced packers, graders and inspectors are to be secured to handle the apple crop this year and it is the intention to have every box of fruit shipped by the association hereafter show up exactly as marked and represented.

A heavy shower that fell during one of the high school commencement exercises at night in the armory made such a deafening noise on the metal roof that the speaker could not be heard. The choir led the audience in singing "America" and the rain continuing to fall in torrents, Rev. Ramsey had them sing "Showers of Blessing."

Residents of Dexter, about 18 miles southeast of Roswell, declare that some of the hail stones that fell there during one of the recent rain storms weighed from nine to sixteen ounces. There were many as large as a baseball and the large ones crashed through shingle roofs and the ceilings of houses. No great damage was done to window glass because there was no wind.

W. A. Phillips, a Roswell contractor, has been called to Sherman, Texas, by the serious illness of his 13-year-old son, Logan Phillips. Last year the boy happened to be in a public room when a man was after some boys who had been stealing fruit from his orchard. Logan had not been with the boys, but the owner of the orchard shot him, the bullet going through the shoulder, spinal column and one lung. The boy has made a brave fight for his life but is now believed to be near the end of his long sufferings.

E. L. Jones sold Alfred Woodruff 14 acres close to Hagerman for $3,799.

S. I. Redfield bought of P. H. Conners 80 acres a mile and a half north-west of Roswell—dry land—for $2,400.

C. E. Mosher has sold W. R. Newcomb 20 acres midway between South Spring and Orchard Park, for $1,028.

Dr. Gable of Duncan, Okla., elected president of the Western Medical and College at Artesia, has wired that he cannot accept, as he has already accepted the superintendency of the public schools at Chickasha, Okla., for next year, and the trustees will meet soon to choose another president.

A. M. Reed, better known as "Big Boy," a baseball catcher, and "Chub" Hastings were arrested at Lakewood Saturday by William Olds, special agent of the Santa Fe, on the charge of "robbing" the southbound Pecos valley train at Lakewood Friday evening. It is claimed one of the stones went through a window of the train. The young men were taken to Carlsbad, where they are in jail awaiting a hearing, having failed to give $500 bond. Train robbing is a serious offense in New Mexico.

Mother's day was observed generally in Roswell. The Ladies' Commercial association sold between 800 and 900 carnations to be worn that day. White carnations were given as souvenirs by all the churches at the morning services.

RANCHER CAPTURES TWO FUGITIVES

Mounted on Horses That They Had Stolen Escaped Prisoners Are Marched Back to Jail by Plainsman.

(Special Correspondence to Herald.) Roswell, N. M., May 18.—Frank Roscoe and Frank Marsden, the two boys who escaped from the jail here last week were captured and brought back to town and turned over to Sheriff Ballard by J. V. Causey an old timer, who lives fifty miles east of Mesquero Springs. The two boys had been traveling only at night, flitting from place to place with no definite destination in view. Deputy Sheriff Jim Johnson had been close on their trail, being only a few hours behind them when they were caught. At the time of their capture they were riding horses that they had stolen from the Best ranch.

They are held in jail on a charge of forgery.

Raton, N. M., May 18.—The directors of the Northern New Mexico Fair association met Saturday afternoon in the Commercial club rooms and transacted a number of important items of business relative to the promotion of the big undertaking. The papers of incorporation were signed and forwarded to the territorial secretary for approval. Although the lease for the proposed fair site has not yet been signed up, assurance has been given that a suitable tract, including the site of the present ball park may be secured from the Santa Fe railroad company for fair purposes. As soon as the preliminary matters of incorporation and organization of committees are disposed of, the directors will proceed at once with the selection of an experienced manager and secretary to take charge of the fair arrangements. An effort will be made at once toward securing the co-operation of farmers in planting prize winning products in the way of grain, vegetables and fruits for exhibition during the holding of the fair. In addition to a large display of stock, agricultural and horticultural exhibits from this section of the territory, various entertainment features, such as a street fair, a racing meet and a baseball tournament will be provided to amuse the large crowds of visitors that will be present fair week. The dates for the fair will be some time during the month of October, preferably during the first week of the month.

A deal was closed last Saturday in Cimarron whereby A. W. Vasey, formerly of Le Roy, Illinois, becomes the owner of 208 shares of stock in the First National bank owned by W. S. Kilpatrick. He also purchased the residence owned by Mr. Kilpatrick and has moved his family here. Mr. Kilpatrick resigned as cashier of the bank Saturday and Mr. Vasey was elected to succeed him.

The new cashier comes to Cimarron highly recommended, having had over twelve years experience in the banking business.

Mr. Kilpatrick will remain in Cimarron for some time at least, having other property interests there that demand his attention.

UNHAPPY REWARD FOR LIFESAVER

Man Who Plunges in to Rescue Drowning One Beaten Up By Man He Saved: No More for Him.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 18.—It does not always pay to be a hero and save a man from drowning, according to Myron Rodda, a 17-year-old resident of Santa Monica. He has learned that his motive may be misunderstood and that he may have to fight a man whose life he saves in order to prove his claim to a hero medal.

Rodda was sitting on the new million dollar pier at Venice with some companions last night about 7 o'clock when he saw Frederick Englebright, a resident of Boyle Heights, reel over backward into the water. Rodda hesitated a moment but jumped into the surf. Being an expert swimmer, he quickly towed Englebright, who, by the time Rodda reached him was half drowned, to safety. Englebright's lungs were pumped out, his clothes wrung out and he was in fair shape to render thanks to his rescuer.

But Englebright looked at Rodda and then accused him of having pushed him into the water. Rodda resented the unjust imputation, and hot words and a few good right and left appeared followed.

Friends interfered and parted the two. After it had been explained fully to Englebright, who is about 25 years of age, that he had accused Rodda unjustly, he said: "Well, I guess you didn't push me into the ocean. You're a good little rescuer. Many thanks for saving my life."

With that Englebright took a car for Los Angeles. Rodda stated to some of his friends that saving drowning men is to be no pastime with him in the future.

Rebel Soldiers Hold Up Mining Expert and After Demanding Money, Give Note on Their Government.

El Paso, Tex., May 18.—Held up in his office and forced to pay 1,000 pesos, for which a receipt on the insurrecto government was given, and that after a night passed in ducking the bullets of frisky insurgents who "shot up" the town to celebrate his capture H. E. Colbran, a mining expert tells a thrilling experience.

Four rebel chiefs, who, armed to the teeth, strode into the mining company's shack, a band of their drunken followers, and a consignment of bullion play a prominent part in Mr. Colbran's narrative of what happened to him during 10 days at San Dimas, in Durango, Mexico.

"I got to San Dimas on a Thursday night," said Colbran yesterday, shifting a cigar to the corner of his mouth and setting back in his chair. "The next night the rebels took the town, and then the fun began."

"Four abreast, the column entered and spread out into the houses of the residents. It was not until midnight that the troops took matters into their own hands, but when they did, everyone hunted cover and stayed there until morning. From one end of the town to the other the insurgents passed, discharging their guns into the air or at whatever mark presented. At each saloon they paused and, after partaking of such refreshments as the place had to offer, they drew off, and a well directed volley finished the work of destruction. In the darkness an inhabitant would occasionally venture forth to head with the leaders of the bands to give his property protection, but such excursions did not apparently meet with the approbation of the rebels, for with shots and curses they drove these unfortunate again indoors.

"In the morning I went to the company's property as if nothing unusual had happened. The town at that time appeared to be very quiet. I had been at work but a short time when four men, the leaders of the detachments of Matamoros' command that had taken the town, entered the office. Each man was equipped with a number of cartridge belts, two revolvers were part of each man's equipment, and there were four Mauser rifles in the party in addition to other weapons.

"The senior officer opened the conversation, and he demanded that 10,000 pesos—about $5,000—be paid him at once. It took considerable argument to convince him that this sum of money was not on hand, but finally a compromise was effected for 1,000 pesos, a receipt for this amount was given, in which protection was guaranteed the company, and the four men departed, apparently well satisfied.

"Next day, however, our men, quite overcome by the display of martial force, kept to their homes and our arguments were of no avail to bring them back to their work. We immediately sent for the leaders of the troops and matters were explained. They acted very fairly in the matter and next morning our labors returned, and the operation of the mine was resumed."

Two rifles and a number of revolvers, which the mining company had on their property for purposes of protection, the rebels permitted the engineers to retain. To show their friendly spirit and their appreciation of what had been contributed to their cause, the insurrecto chiefs, Mr. Colbran says, furnished an escort of 10 men to convey a consignment of bullion from the mine to the point of shipment. This got through in safety.

That Americans and foreign interests in general will be treated fairly by the new government, should it succeed in establishing itself, Colbran feels certain.
